Objectives

This 3-credit course will focus on the current major issues in sea turtle biology, conservation, and management. Each Tuesday, there will be lectures by the instructor or guest speakers or the class will work on pre-designated group research projects. Each Thursday we will discuss readings, explore recent research, and identify research needs. Readings for class discussions will be both classic papers and recent literature.

Required Textbook

Witherington, Blair & Dawn. 2015. Our Sea Turtles: A practical guide for the Atlantic and Gulf, from Canada to Mexico. Pineapple Press, Sarasota, Florida. One copy of the textbook is on course reserve at Marston Science Library, available two hours during the day or overnight.

Basis of Grade

If you have any questions about your grade, please see me as soon as possible.

The course grade is based on the following breakdown of 100 possible points:

- Class participation including attendance (30%)
- Written discussion questions (16%)
- Group Research Project (34%)
- Group Presentation for discussion session (10%)
- Assorted individual assignments (10%)

Thus, 56% of the grade is based on individual work and 44% on group work. No exams are given.

Class participation: Grade is based on attendance and quality of participation in class discussions. Punctual attendance at each of the 28 class periods is worth 0.5% of the grade for a total of 14% of the grade. Substantive participation in each of the 8 class discussions during which the student is not a presenter is worth 2% of their grade for a total of 16% of the grade. Each student is ranked either high, low or none for their contributions during discussions. High participation requires at least one substantive contribution during the class discussion.

Written discussion questions: Each student not leading the discussion session writes two substantive questions based on the readings and submits them before each of the discussion sessions. If there is more than one assigned reading, only one question can be based on each reading. Each student will write questions for eight discussion sessions for a total of 16 questions. Grade is based on both content and written communication. For each pair of questions, grades are assigned as:

Excellent = 2.0 points
Good = 1.5 points
Average = 1.0 point
Poor = 0.5 point

Examples of Not Substantive and Substantive Questions

Not substantive question

How can we decrease the amount of plastic debris entering the oceans?

Substantive question

Nelms et al. noted "turtles in early life history stages, that are small in size may be at higher risk of mortality from plastic ingestion due to their smaller less robust digestive tracts" and Schuyer et al. noted "oceanic life stage were significantly more like to ingest debris than turtles of an unknown stage".

However based on their literature reviews we do not have as much data on this life stage so how can we get more data and do you think these findings would change if we had more data or be substantiated?

Group Research Project: Instructor assigns four students to each of five research groups and assigns one of five research projects created by the instructor to each group. Grade is based on quality of research results, oral presentation of results, and written presentation of results in a poster. In addition to my assessment, each student gives me anonymously a ranking of Excellent, Good, Average, Poor, Very poor with an explanation of why the rank is assigned for the other students in his/her Research Group.

The final poster is worth 25 points (25% of course grade) and is graded by each student, the instructor, and a guest faculty member as follows:

Informative title: 2 points
Objectives: 4 points
Introduction: 4 points
Materials and Methods: 3 points
Results: 4 points
Discussion: 4 points
Overall clarity: 4 points

Only the scores from the instructor and guest faculty member are used in assigning the grade to the poster. Students grade each poster and describe the strengths and weaknesses of each poster as an educational experience.

Presentation for discussion session: Instructor assigns two to three students to each of eight discussion groups. Each group selects a topic with two to three readings designated by the instructor. Each group creates a 5-10 minute Powerpoint introduction to the assigned topic and then leads the class discussion for a class period. Grade is based on quality of the Powerpoint presentation, the oral presentation, and the ability to maintain high level of discussion. In addition to my assessment, each student gives me anonymously a ranking of Excellent, Good, Average, Poor, Very poor with an explanation of why the rank was assigned for the other students in his/her Discussion group.
